Predictions of the Future and Truth About the Past and the Present

Preface

The latest developments in the world – world economic crisis and geopolitical changes – set thinking every person about the cause of their origin. Putting together fragments of news in a joint mosaic of the on-going process, one may come to a conclusion that behind all this disorder and rapid changes, storming in the life of almost every person, there are powers, certain people, who possess the largest share of the world capital and whose names are not public. However, it is them who are the ‘puppeteers’ of the world billionaires. It is they who decided to provoke activities in the world aimed at destruction of the largest part of human population on the planet in a difficult period for humanity of global climate changes on the Earth.

What powers are they and what their plans are, history of their existence, their methods and approaches of manipulating the masses of people – this information is accessibly presented in the books by Anastasia Novykh. Fiction style of these books enables clever people to realize much more than it is written there, to see globally and correlate scattered information, to find the key of decision, by matching with the events occurring around, and supplementing it with new data. The ‘world elite’ is merely a tiny group of people if compared to the humanity. They are only able to plan. However, implementation of their plans depends purely on the masses of people, on a personal choice of every individual. The choice is made on the basis of integral information. The future now is in hands of every person!

Secret World Government – Archons Abstracts from the book by Anastasia Novykh ‘Sensei of Shambala’, Book III

Who are the Archons?

“As for the elite itself, you are wrong to think that it can be blown off with a revolution,” condescendingly grinned Ariman, “Often the elite itself orders this very revolution, the wave of which merely wipes off puppets out of favor with the elite in order to put new ones in their place. Perhaps, I’ll tell you a history about this world elite so that you’ll have a better understanding of the matter.

“Their ancestors per se were individuals who tried to save knowledge of the previous civilization, including the knowledge of so-called supernatural capabilities. They have been passing this knowledge only hereditary; in extremis they found themselves successors. That is in practice they’ve retained and improved this knowledge from one generation to another, keeping it in secret from people. When humankind significantly increased in terms of population and there appeared foundations of social and economic formation, chieftain leaders showed up. However, behind the visible power of those actually there were ‘knowledge keepers’ or, as they liked to call themselves, the ‘minions of gods and spirits’. Not only did they consult the chieftains, but in fact they were skillfully manipulating them, making them carry out their commands. This group of special people had various names: shamans, sorcerers, wizards, priests, and so on. Their real name, however, is Archons.

“Translated from Greek it means ‘chiefs’, ‘rulers’. But if you go deeper into history, the true sense of this word shall be revealed as it means ‘the rulers of the world’. So, practically the Archons separated themselves into a distinctive caste of intermediaries between people and higher powers, later named gods. A chieftain of a tribe was a public person, had responsibility for his tribe, and was under power of an Archon. The Archon, actually governing the tribe through the chieftain, always remained in the shade. This secrecy gave him more opportunities for real manipulations over people. While chieftain leaders were chosen by people of the tribe, the Archon passed his ‘magical art’ of real power only to his successor. In other words, a distinctive caste was being formed, in the hands of which a real power was concentrated. The more this caste consolidated its power, the more toil – for its benefit – it gave to other members of the society. Noteworthy, it is this group that usurped principal knowledge later on, thus subordinating other people to their needs. This is exactly the first elite of this civilization.”

“Were there many of them at that time?” inquired Kostya.

“No. Their quantity is fixed. At that time and presently there are twelve people plus one Chief Archon, who is at the head of them.”

“Why exactly twelve?”

“Because this civilization originates from twelve human families. The Archons of the present are direct successors of the first twelve Archons. Now then, alongside the growth of human population Archons continued to grow in art of people control and manipulation. As they say, few people – few chiefs. Many people – many chiefs. They created a so-called artificial elite, placing their marionettes all over the world, who ruled over entire nations. Moreover, it is they who elaborated and implemented one of the most curious form of mind manipulation and governance over people – religion. The Archons based this artificially created form of public conscience transformation on the two strongest human stimuli: belief and fear. They added some drops of the true knowledge, putting them into an appropriate shape for a greater servility of the crowd and perpetuated this serfdom through monopolizing of the spiritual culture...

“For example, take the Bible well-known to you and honored by half of the planet as the sacred book. Who composed the Old Testament? The priests, that is, the servants of the Archons. And who composed the New Testament? Marionettes of the Archons...”

“It turns out that these Archons are at the head of the world religions?”

“De facto in power, yes. But to be more precise, their minions were and will be at the head of all of the world religions. At the head of all big politics and businesses there are their marionettes. Even all those people who swayed the destinies of the world, as for instance Alexander of Macedon, Genghis Khan, Tamerlane, Napoleon, Stalin, Hitler, and others, were merely pieces on their chessboard where they performed their usual intricate games.”

“Wait, wait,” implored lost Stas. “What do you mean by ‘minions’?! How about Jesus, Buddha, Mohammed? These people brought freedom to people. They can’t be minions of those priests...”

Ariman did not even let him finish, interrupting his speech in an imperious arrogant tone: “And where is their freedom?!” And making a meaningful pause, he demanded again in a commanding voice: “Where?! Yes, there were those who tried to teach something, to give people the knowledge. What’s more the very Grail, the utmost power, was in people’s hands! And what of it? Where did it all come to? Another victory of the Archons and creation of new religions on the basis of the lost Teachings! And why? Because people are too lazy to transform themselves. Because people are already used to gregarious habits, they are used to servile way of thinking. They wait all the time to be governed. The Archons did such a great job that people are already enjoying to be morons. They enjoy being dumb and wait to be spoon-fed with explanations from their manipulators. It is more convenient for them to live in a flock than to be free men. They doom themselves to a lifetime slavery, so let them remain slaves if that is what they want. It is their choice after all. Everyone decides for one’s own self.”

“Look at the way this world is organized,” continued Ariman. “It is managed by a small group of people, the mighty of this world, who make billions of people work for them. Do you think these high and mighty trust television or newspapers? Of course not, because in fact they are the makers of those events that you see, for everything occurs according to their scenario in order to hold in continuous awe and servility their employees, that is yourselves. As for television and press, they are merely public heralds of their ‘royal decrees’. Should the slaves want freedom and democracy, they shall get freedom and democracy and in such a way these slaves have never dreamt of. The heralds play such a farce that a man, let alone his unwillingness of such a democracy, would gladly kiss his fetters, if only everything remained at least as it had been before. You know, it’s like in that joke. If you want to make someone happy, first deprive him of everything he has and then return at least a half. In the grand scheme of things, all wars, revolutions, struggle for freedom, for democracy – all these are lies, beautiful tales, written by the mighty of this world for the slaves to imperatively believe in. But the fact is that at the bottom of all these events there is simply money, big money.

“If the slaves want to feel the national pride, here you are, the heralds are on the spot. If they want to experience the excitement of scandals, public denunciations – as much as you like, all sizes, all colors. You see, people are paltry in their everyday inclinations. Nothing arouses more interest in them than somebody’s tragedy. The mighty of this world will work any kind of doomsday for you, anything you like, just be a slave, go with the crowd, be like others and think like others. They are few in number, but they manipulate well. As for the slaves – slaves they are. The origin of servility is descended from one generation to another, and there are very few of those who can break out of this vicious circle. That is why there have always been and will be the castes of rulers and the crowds of slaves... For the whole world is ruled by money nowadays.

“Besides, slaves are inculcated not only in poverty, but, as I was already saying, in fear too, due to which clever people make billions. I’ll give you a simple example of how leading pharmaceutical companies earn colossal sums on slavish conscience. They just create a little world ballyhoo around some disease. And that’s all. It is the very initial investment that will return them a hundredfold profit.”

* * *

“For example, they created AIDS problem and ensured a stable financial profit for themselves by selling expensive medicine, which, if judged fairly, does not solve this problem for the patient,” said Ariman. “It didn’t take much announcing throughout the world about a possible tuberculosis epidemic threat to make a mint of money on that for themselves. I won’t be surprised if they invent (by the time they run out of standard ideas) some kind of mutated flu virus, transmitted to humans from animals or birds.”

“How can they invent it if such a virus maybe does not exist in nature at all?” asked shocked Stas.

“You see, even you say ‘maybe’. And uncertainty is an indication of servile psychology. Add to it purchased opinions of several scientists of leading world virology laboratories and you’ll implicitly believe this information. The main thing for them is that you believed. Then your fear and reflexes of your self-defense instinct will do a lot more than all of the conventional medicine ads combined. And do not worry about the virus. If a blank cannon-shot isn’t impressive enough to stir the crowd, it will be replaced with a practice cartridge. So, if mother nature does not create such a virus, people will help it. And all for the sake of earning billions on the same vaccine from the virus.

“All in all, these chaps do well! I admire their brilliant inventions in advertising and arrangement of sizable capital influx. What’s important everything is relatively honest: you care about your health, they care about their purses. Although, by curing one illness with their preparations in return you gain three new illnesses free of charge. As a result you become their hostages, their perpetual sponsors. Is it not a brilliant idea of constant capital replenishment at the expense of your fear, impressionability, and servility?! It’s a big business. Whereas big business is power. All free people tend to rule over someone lest to become that someone to be ruled over.”

* * *

“What is well-spread among the masses is far from always being true,” – emphasized Ariman. “Because for the elite of mankind, which pays for all this myths-making, the masses are slaves. If real historical facts were revealed to people, for instance, about the life and the teaching of Jesus, Buddha, and so on, the mighty power of those who keep these facts in secret would collapse...”

“And look at it from a larger perspective, for example, on a national basis. People disdain to use any means, they go all lengths for the sake of power,” Ariman spoke didactically. “What do you think they need this power for? For supplying peoples’ needs?! Of course not! They endeavor solely for their own sake, for gratification of their megalomania and growth of their capital. They understand perfectly that they themselves are merely puppets of the mighty of this world. That is why they snatch whatever they can snatch from their power. Many commoners praise them to the ideal of philanthropy. While in fact they are the same people as everyone, no better than others. The difference between you and them is that they are more cunning, more agile, and more self-confident. There is no sense in expecting charity from them. They may give it only when in the first place they gain something from it. And they throw it to people as if throwing a bone to a hungry dog, so that it would drool all over at the sight of the 'generous master'".

* * *

"Many real wars, however, happened because of competition among serious people," Ariman noted. "And other causes of war that were later explained to vast masses, that is to the servile crowd, are only tales for the herd, in order to rouse the spirit of nationalism in it, amuse megalomania of their herdsman as well as distract the herd's attention from the vital problems. No more."

"How can people be a herd?" objected Volodya. "They are humans."

"Humans they are, of course. But they are foolish. They are slaves, who were governed by clever people. And they will be governed, whatsoever fine word this governance is called. For a person in the crowd has no more individuality, but only a part of the crowd. He is not capable of thinking on his own in the crowd, to evaluate soberly situation and 'facts', generously strewed by the orator. It is because a man in the crowd sees thousands of the like, and this union, this huge power, inspires him. It is a huge power indeed, but it is not of that man or any other taken separately out of that mass of bodies. It is the power of the orator! It is he who transforms it and channels it properly.

"And with this power he imprints in consciousness of everyone those tenets that are carefully camouflaged with tumid words. In other words the orator simply uses suggestion mechanisms. And nothing else. Therefore, a herd is a herd, all around, which with bleating takes its lead from a skilful shepherd. Although, nowadays controlling a herd is referred to in finer words, the meaning does not change because of that. I understand full well, guys, that there is little pleasant in these words, but it is true. And the truth always has bitter taste. I simply open your eyes to the world as it is.

"This is life, guys, where at the end of the day nobody needs anybody and nobody does anything without a particular reason. For one thing, take a look at how political elections are run. Take any country. They promise whole mountains of gold to people. And after elections? Riding on rams and donkeys the politician reaches his own paradise and then shuts its gates right after himself. People remain in poverty just as they have lived in poverty. Do you know, whom the newly elected politician is concerned about in the first place? At first, about himself, his incomings. Then about his family. And finally, about his own retinue, so that they would kiss hands of their master and lest they should forget his 'benefactions'. Nobody cares about people and nobody will. Because in the grand scheme of things nobody cares about the commonage. If it is still able to keep on feet and work, then it's alright. Where can it go? It would grumble and bridle a bit, and then survive somehow. You see, it is nothing but a workstock, which lives in a stable, feeds on rejects, and works from morning till night. It exists for the reason of bringing profits to the elite and breed, granting its masters inflow of fresh work force in the form of new slaves. I understand that it is unpleasant to hear this. But look around. This is reality. You will recall my words again, because it is the truth of life!

"Do you think something has changed since the time of slave-owning?! Nothing of the kind. Only methods of influence on the slaves have changed, but by no means people themselves. The system of controlling the slaves has changed, but slavery has never been abolished! Look at the present-day world, at the ruling elite exploiting the masses and using them for personal gain. It simply obtrudes its beneficial concepts on peoples. It models likes and behavior of the masses, intentionally controls and standardizes a man.”

How can the Elite Obtrude Something on Me?

“How can the elite obtrude something on me if I’m all by myself? I myself decide how to live,” Stat was surprised.

Ariman chuckled: “You suppose so, young man, because you did not perform a serious analysis of your life, of how you live, and what forces you to make various decisions in life. In truth you don’t even realize that your life, your liking, perception, and your choice is being skillfully manipulated. It is because the elite needs slaves, not free people! You see, in your perception, in order for you to be manipulated, there’s got to be some overseer with a whip that would stood over you. This is narrow-mindedness. In modern world with all of its leading-edge technologies, everything is much more simple and efficient. The elite artfully created that very overseer out of your own mind, which tells you how to live, whom and what give preference to in your life. And it created it with the help of an ancient method of influencing a human – what is called advertising nowadays.”

“Why do you call advertising an ancient method? It’s appeared on TV just recently,” asked Ruslan bewildered.

“So it seems to you. In fact this phenomenon exists as long as reasonable humans do,” explained Ariman with a smile. “The modern word ‘advertising’ originates from the ancient Latin reclamare, which means ‘to proclaim’, ‘to demand’, ‘to call out’. Earlier it was extensively employed in writing and especially verbally for promulgating of the desired information through special-purpose people – market touts, criers, broadcasters, and so on. This is the most ancient method of influencing a human. And it is based on the unshakable psychological peculiarity of a man to believe exactly in what he would want to believe in, taking the wish for the reality. Clever advertising only wakes a ‘dormant’ need in a man. It contaminates him and forces him to imitate.”

“A ‘dormant need’?” repeated Yura. “What does it mean?”

Ariman explained instantly: “For example, you feel lack of self-confidence, underrate your self-judgment, but at the same time you are trying to suppress these feelings. But they do not disappear, you know. They just ‘drowse’ in your sub-consciousness, waiting for a positive resolution of this personal emotional problem or of a set of psychological problems. This is where advertisement appears before you. It convinces you that the advertised, whatever, would give you what you dreamed of. By the by, it is all viewed in an optimistic light, which, of course, would pick you up, for on a subconscious level there will occur a stimulating effect of your ‘dormant’ unrealized need. As a result, like a Pavlov’s dog at the first bell-ring, you would spatter, willing to get the camouflaged ‘marrowbone’ palmed to you.

“Advertisement utilizes a vast range of special technologies of emotional impact on a prospect. It appeals to your natural desires. For example, desire to be in good health, to have success, wealth, happiness, to look beautiful; to your vanity, self-importance, delusions of grandeur; to your ambition of enhancing your social status, and so forth. In other words, people as a flock are going on a leash of artificially generated desires, without even knowing that this is the very whip the elite skillfully handles.

“Wake up and look around! In fact everything you believe to be unshakable is in truth invented by people just like you. They are simply more self-assured and pushier. Who writes laws by which the society lives? People do. Who calls the tune of fashion? People. Who defines the ideals? Again those, who can artfully protrude their opinions to the masses. Clever people produce idols, cult-figures, and heroes for the whole nations. And it has been this way since the primitive society till the present day and in everything at that: from preferences in food and commodities to art. Take pictures of Picasso, for example. I’ll draw better with my foot alone! And his works are presented to the masses in eulogistic odes as drawings of the master of acutely expressive creations in neoclassical style, the founder of cubism, whose pictures have a, say, huge social importance. Or take 'Black Square' by Malevich. The guy was not in the mood, so he daubed the canvas with black paint. And people marvel at this smeared canvas, seeking deep philosophy in it. And they will find it, and they will believe in what is proclaimed to them! For it is passed through the mechanisms of psychological manipulation of the masses.

“Or take John Rockefeller Senior. This man became a legend. His name is known all over the world. By the way, even during his lifetime his image was turned into some good-natured old fellow, who spent millions on charity and gave away hotels to children. However, creation of his ideal image was just a skilful wordplay, modeling ‘public opinion’ for the naive audience. John was such a pinch-gut, of something else. What kind of charity can one talk about? Keep in mind, guys, one simple truth: serious businessmen never throw money on charity for nothing. They will spend money on a project only in such a case when it is advantageous for them, if in this campaign they will see good advertisement to their business, their image, their status in the society. Or if they view another neat trick for laundering of dirty money. But for no special reason no one will stir a finger. Now then, John Rockefeller made a very wise move. Lest he should spend large capital on promotion of his image thought ‘costly’ (for him) charity, he did much better. In 1903 Rockefeller hired a young reporter Ivy Lee and made him a personal ‘advisor’ of the family, having generously paid for his services. And this little reporter simply turned public opinion upside down, creating in his publications out of John Scrooge a positive image of the greatest fairy godfather of time, caring about people. That’s why don’t believe everything you see and hear. This world is a mere mummerly!”

World War III

Abstracts from the book by Anastasia Novykh 'Sensei of Shambala', Book IV

“What were you saying about the 3rd World War?” Volodya asked Sensei. “Do the Archons plan it for real?”

“Unfortunately,” nodded Sensei.

“With the present nuclear weaponry of the leading countries?!” uttered Nikolai Andreevich. “But this is stupid!”

“Of course it is stupid, in the understanding of reasonable people. In perverted understanding of the Archons, however, it is normal... I suppose now I'll tell you something that soon will be known to millions of people. I'll tell you about secret plans of the Archons, so that it won't be 'boring' for them to work afterwards... Now then, the Archons plan global wars for generations. And according to their calculations, this generation is to witness the 3rd World War. Archons planned three dates for the beginning of the global war depending on geopolitical situation as well as the level of preparedness of the population, brought about by them. The first date is December 23rd, 2012, already PR-ed all around the world through indirect advertisement as a possible doomsday. The second date is 2017. And the third is the year 2025. These are the major dates they orientate themselves to and base their calculations on. Although, of course, there may be changes like in any plan... In principle their preparation for these events can be easily seen and tracked. The only strong opponent of the Archons that would seriously stand against their intentions will be...”

“The Soviet Union?” asked Victor impatiently.

“I'd put it a bit more precisely – Russia... Now then, the Archons' preparation to a new global war can be quite easily tracked by events. I have already told you a lot about how the Archons are acting and I'm going to tell you more. Their methods practically do not change, and they were highlighted and repeated more than once. Everything will be done according to an old elementary scheme.

“First thing they will do is attempt to weaken as much as possible their serious opponent that is actually able to interfere with realization of their plans. In order to do so they will resort either to provocative destructive policy within this state thought their people or, if it proves ineffective, they will try to surround this state with countries under their control. Naturally, as necessary they will perform state takeovers and revolutions in these countries in order to place in power their puppet governments.

“Second, they will artificially create a ‘world crises’, since the largest share of the world capital is in their hands. Creating ‘suitable’ situations on the world exchanges is commonplace for them too. Recall at least the previous artificially triggered world crises and subsequent World War II... Besides that, in order to create appropriate public sentiment before the 3rd world war, the Archons will artificially create a ‘world food crises’, which will cause suffering among the poorest underclass. Without any visible cause there will be shortage of food that will lead to hunger in the Third World countries and to considerable increase in food prices in developed countries. As an excuse there will be ‘assumptions’ that it all might be connected with global warming and the problem of planet overpopulation. Such ‘claims’ will accordingly bring about a desire of hungry people to decrease the number of human population for their own benefit.”

Volodya pronounced frowning: “It's a gloomy situation indeed... But, Sensei, you've mentioned that a global climate change is actually coming forth. Therefore, this may be just a prognosticated future.”

“Prognosticated future?!” Sensei uttered accusingly. “Why, with all the current technologies it is real to turn Sahara desert into a blooming garden and provide for considerable part of humanity with its fruits. Not to mention the abundance of fertile soils on the Earth more than sufficient to make such notion as famine no longer existing on this planet,” Sensei kept silent for a second and continued narrating already in his usual tone.

“Third, and most important, they are going to finance and make several needless to anyone wars with some Third World countries, but with involvement of the USA as the ‘world policeman, fighting for democracy in the whole world’. During these wars, naturally, people will lose their lives, including American guys, who actually, not knowing all the underlying reasons of these wars, will think, dying, that at the cost of their lives they are defending democracy and interests of their country on a foreign land. People will perish; therefore, discontent among the American population will increase. Using this civil unrest, at the right moment the Archons will accuse in all the troubles another puppet-president of theirs, writing everything off to his ‘unsuccessful policy’. Simultaneously, they will try to incline their allies and people of their country to an opinion that regular wars are not effective: warfare runs into money and these wars take longer than planned (although the Archons finance the opposing party as well), people lose their lives in them, and there is no sense in it. In other words, money and human resources are wasted, and there is no use in it. As a result a public opinion will be formed that the US must have the right to make first nuclear strike at such ‘unfair, undemocratic’ countries that in no way fit into the Archons’ policy. This opinion will sink into people’s heads that Americans as a ‘free nation’ and a ‘world power’ must have the right of making the first nuclear strike. It is less expensive and, most importantly, American guys do not die in the struggle for ‘democracy in the whole world’.

“Now, in order to convince people that nuclear war is necessary, they will manipulate the economy of ‘the most powerful nation’. As the Archons always do. At first the country’s economy is artificially boosted; people get used to living good. Then they get a ‘foreign enemy’ of the country. At this time the Archons provoke acute economic recession; a serious economic slump is set. As a result many people lose their jobs. Public opinion becomes quite unfriendly. More so, a topic will be actively discussed in the press that their main ‘enemy’ is growing rich at the very same time, and ‘assumptions’ will be put forward that, probably, it is because ‘our people are getting poorer every day’. This provocation will involuntarily arouse envy, anger, and rather negative relations among people, brought up on the dominance of the Animal nature, towards the country that is ‘growing rich at their expense’. Ultimately these assumptions of the press will turn in a category of accusations from government itself, which hints that all these economical troubles are because of that ‘unkind nation’. Thus, a person, being in strained circumstances – yet recalling the time when he lived well and comfortably in his ‘free prosperous nation’ – and seeing another country growing rich – because of which he became poor, allegedly, – this person sub-consciously reorients from the inner enemy to the outer one, without even thinking about why these crises in fact arise and who creates them. In other words, the citizens begin to hate ‘by default’ the country, which the henchmen of the Archons are pointing them to.

“The further the more. They will start psychologically preparing people for the necessity of being the first to use the nuclear weapon, it is quick and it will efficiently punish the ‘undemocratic country’ because of which ‘all become poorer’. Thus, the Archons will attempt to launch a global war, where obviously very many people will die, including those who thirsted for such ‘retribution’.”

“Thirsted? Can people be fooled that much?” doubted Victor with astonishment. “Here, just consider it logically, if the strong nations launched a nuclear war, who would then survive? What are the Archons counting on?”

“Yes, if this happens, the largest part of humanity will perish... Although for quick recovery of human population it is sufficient to leave at least one hundred thousands human specimen.

And the Archons know it well. It is no wonder they are actively implementing Agarty plan developed back during the World War II, when a nuclear bomb became an evident reality of the near future. According to this plan a completely autonomous city is to be built deep under the ground (designed for habitation of 144 thousand people taking into account their reproduction) that would be sufficiently safe under any cataclysms and secure from nuclear strikes.

“The Archons expect that in case they were unsuccessful in ideological domination of the world and becoming the single dictator in a form of the ‘world government’, then after this global war they would rule over the world entirely. And their ‘One World Government’ would finally be established over the whole world, of all the remaining people on the Earth them having the fee simple. They expect that within the new generations they would cultivate a solely servile psychology, based on the Animal nature and purely Arimanian principles. But there arises another question. Who would need such a human civilization with an absolute dominance of the Animal?”

Sensei sighed heavily and after a short silence pronounced: “Why am I telling you all this is for you to see, know, understand, and more importantly to make the right decisions in your lives as well as to put them into action... Wars are orchestrated by a handful of people. The rest of their numerous slavish suite are merely underlings that live at the Archons’ momentary dole and please their megalomania by the power provided, not even guessing that for the Archons they are but a cannon fodder. These underlings trust in their ‘happily ever after’, that is why they diligently execute orders of their Masters, leading the world to the World War III. And they don’t even realize that their children will suffer from this war too and that their lives will end as a video-tape on a frame of a nuclear mushroom cloud.”

How to Oppose the Archons? Abstracts from the book by Anastasia Novykh 'Sensei of Shambala', Book IV

The Cause of Power of the Archons and Ariman (the Chief Archon) over People

“And is it true about the Archons?” asked Stas.

“Yes,” Sensei replied.

“So, they are shamans, sorcerers, priests?”

“Oh, no, they were such earlier in high antiquity, and actually far not every one of them. Nowadays, they are people, who weave together world capital, politics, and religion in their lodges and secret societies.”

“World bankers or something?” Volodya was surprised at his guess.

“Those who control them,” specified Sensei.

“What are those secret societies, I wonder?” enquired Volodya.

“Well, they were called differently in different times. For example, one of the first influential circles of the Archons is known under the name of ‘Freemasons’. Many a branch has grown from this trunk. There are so-called ‘Brotherhood of the Snake’, ‘Brotherhood of the Dragon’, ‘Illuminati’, ‘Masons’ and other secret societies. Historians are still trying to find out, which originated which. But they are just getting more confused. Why? Because the Archons’ goal is to reshuffle and tangle everything, so that very few may guess and get to the bottom of the genuine essence of all these secret societies. And the essence is very simple. The predominating majority of the secret societies are pawns in the hands of the Archons for manipulations of Ariman.

“Ariman only plays on people’s weaknesses. One of such weaknesses is a subconscious inclination of people to secrets. Not only spiritual impulse of an individual is touched upon in this case, that is his desire to break away from the chain of reincarnations with the help of secret knowledge, but, which is more often the case, banal egoistic ambitions of possessing this knowledge for the sake of power over the like. That’s why the overwhelming majority of the secret societies flourish under the Archons. And considering that people not only want to possess the secret knowledge, but also create their own ‘empire’ around themselves, we have nowadays the situation that practically the whole world is ruled by the secret world government, the Archons.”

Sensei became silent, and after some reflection Volodya said, “Honestly speaking, even considering my knowledge and experience of a combatant officer, I’ve never heard about that, especially about secret societies of such a level. Could you enlighten us a bit on this matter?” And, seeing Sensei’s hesitation, he added, “It’s better to know the enemy by sight, then to be in the dark.”

In reply Sensei said, “Why, the Archons are no enemies! They are unhappy people, who mistakenly chose hollow and temporary instead of the eternal. Their choice was made in favor of matter, or rather Ariman. A man is always inventing some kind of enemies for himself all the time, because by the highest standards he is not able to sort out his own inner conflict between his Animal and Spiritual natures. Relations among groups of people and countries are only an enlarged, exaggerated copy of this conflict. In truth, the most bitter enemy for a man is he himself, his Animal nature to be exact. There is no way to fight it with traditional methods, for the greater the opposition, the more the aggression from the Animal, because you put your attention into this conflict. You can win it over only by your unwillingness to yield to provocations and temptations of the Animal nature as well as by concentration on the spiritual, beneficial for your soul. It is then, when you take such internal stand and will sincerely follow it, that you will have no enemies in the outer world too; and your life will turn into a fascinating game. After all, we are living here temporarily, consider it visiting.”

“Yes, but this is a world-trap of Ariman?! How to live in it if you want to become Free?” asked Yura in an agitated tone.

“No matter what conditions are the life sets you in, no matter what difficulties are the fate puts for you, you should live the way of a Human. That is to become a Human yourself and to help people around you. The most significant point in this life is to be free inside in Spirit, free of material world, and to go towards God without turning from this path. Then in your external life you will be able to bring utmost good to people and live a life worthy of being called a Human. And that is the greatest secret! Become a Human now and here in this egoistic, material world. Be similar to a Lotus that grows amidst dirt of a swamp, but despite that gains ideal purity! You are a Human, and you have His seed in you!”

With bated breath our company listened to these words spoken by Sensei.

“Yes, in order to become a Human in this world, indeed, one needs to have enormous willpower and courage, so that to keep cleanness of thoughts, not soiled with the dirt of this swamp,” agreed Nikolai Andreevich. “A man, however, is generally inclined to imitate the habit of life of the majority of people in the world. That’s why all this longing for egoistic doings. That’s why we swim in dirt, calming our Consciousness with phrases like ‘everybody does that’, ‘everyone lives like that’.” And after a pause he added: “As for the Archons... Frankly, it would be quite interesting to hear about these secret societies for me too. Not by temptation, but because one needs to be able to make out what’s what; learn to separate the wheat from the chaff...”

Sensei nodded in approval to his answer: “The problem is that people want what Ariman was speaking about. They want to become significant in this material world before other people, satisfying ambitions of their Animal nature, instead of proving to God that they are worthy of being called a Human, by aspiring to Him and taking care of their soul. They want to become superrich and famous, stepping over any verge, using any means soever, only to achieve their goal. They live in order to be better than others and possibly far better than others. Many are trying to make their way to become leaders. Almost every single person believes that if he was born in this world, he has a privilege to live best of all and he’s certainly got to reach some specified heights in terms of career, status, and material welfare.”

The Genuine Freedom

Victor sighed and uttered: “Everything’s right. You’ve got to stay vigilant on guard of your thoughts and be cautious in choosing your desires.”

“Well, I agree. It would be great if you just mounted guard and stayed vigilant,” pronounced Stas. “But what if your guard is being bombarded with such slogans as ‘freedom’, ‘equal opportunities’, if they suggest it to you all around, while in truth using you as a slave?”

Sensei replied: “‘Freedom’ and ‘equality’ are among the most luring word-traps of Ariman, because a man reacts to them on the basis of spiritual needs. While then, owing to a skillful interpretation of ‘democracy’ by Ariman...”

“It is like a way to chose a slaveholder for yourself, or something?” Victor joked.

“Something like that,” nodded Sensei. “You see, by means of the word ‘freedom’ Ariman nowadays drives a person to recognition that a man is able to achieve it only through money by having a sufficient capital. Wealth and power are the key instruments of manipulating with people’s consciousness. But the genuine freedom is when a person grows higher than this world, higher than material desires; when a man every day, every hour lives for the sake of the soul, filling its treasury with good deeds, thoughts, and helping people around. When a man lives not for the sake of his egoism and importance, but for other people in the name of God.”
